General Investigation (Family Violence) S00705

Short Course

Skills Academy Provider Program

Family violence is when someone uses abusive behaviour to control and/or harm a member of their family, or someone with whom they have an intimate relationship. Family violence includes many different forms of physical and emotional abuse, as well as neglect carried out by family members or intimate partners. Violence in the home harms everyone in the family. Children are especially vulnerable. When they see violent behaviour between family members, or when they're abused themselves, they may grow up to be abusive to their partners or children. As policing practitioners, it is our responsibility to prevent family violence and this cycle of abuse.

Magic Info About This Course

In a study done by the World Health Organization, it was found that 60,000 women and children are victims of domestic violence in South Africa. Nearly half of the female murders that happened in 1999 in South Africa resulted from domestic violence. This epidemic requires utmost attention and therefore having a thorough and complete understanding of how to deal with family violence is a much needed skill for South African society as a whole.

Upgrade Your Course With Accredited Unit Standards

You can upgrade your course to receive Unit Standard Credits on the NQF. These credits can add up to a full qualification, accredited by SASSETA.

Please note that if the syllabus, or the study materials or the assessments change, then you run the risk of having to redo your Skills programme when you need to upgrade to the accredited unit standards. So to avoid this risk, you should upgrade as soon as you have finished your Skills course.

1. For a full programme, you have six months after completing with Skills Academy to upgrade.
2. For a short course, you have three months after completing a subject with Skills Academy.

You will need to refer to the learning materials you got from Skills Academy. So you should hold on to your study materials, and if you want to upgrade, do it as soon as you have completed your course with Skills Academy.
